

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An arrangement includes an electrically operated production machine having at least one electrically operated motor and a machine element, and a temperature control system for maintaining the machine element at a controlled temperature. The temperature control system includes a heating unit which is integrated in a machine-internal heat exchange process to use thermal losses generated by the motor to heat the machine element.